

Radvision and Scopia

T1 Company LLC

Voice, Video and Data Conferencing Solution.

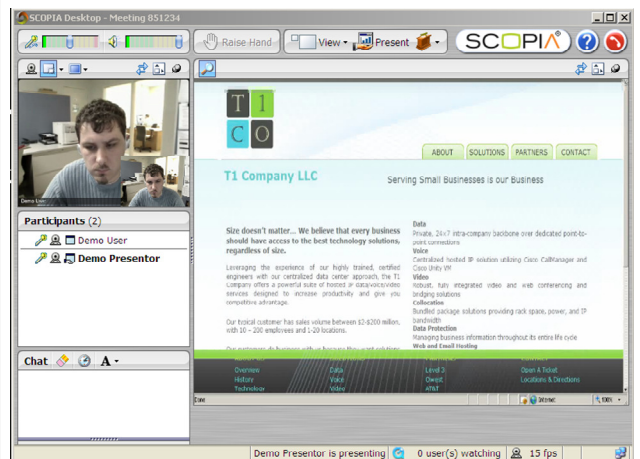

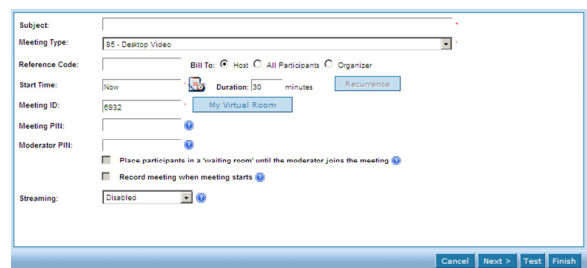

Welcome to T1 Company's Conference Solution without the conference room. Scopia Desktop and our Conference Bridge allow in-house or remote users to connect to each other or to room systems with ease. Share voice, video and presentations with a few clicks of the mouse. Scopia desktop is a browser plug-in that is easy to install and does not have licensing or installation issues.

Meetings can be scheduled from the web in iView. Scheduling allows meetings to be secured with a pin and also secures the moderator functions with a separate pin. Participants can be added via the built in directory or by adding their name and email address to the list. An email with a link and instructions will be sent to each participant allowing the moderator to worry about the meeting instead of the users connecting. The iView web application can also be branded with your company logo.

Scopia Desktop includes full moderation capabilities including: inviting other participants, muting participants, granting requests to speak, blocking a participant's video, disconnecting unwanted attendees, enabling streaming for conference webcasting, recording, displaying participants' names, locking and terminating meetings. Scopia Desktop's data collaboration allows the moderator to present any application on their desktop to all participants in the meeting.

Meetings can also be streamed to any PC or MAC in Quick-time format. Optional features include the ability to record meetings for later viewing.
